Single Copy—FIVE CENTS

20 Killed on Maine Roads

Nine February motor vehicle fatalities brought Maine's highway death total to 20 for the first two months of 1952. This compares with 26 deaths in 1951, 19 in 1950, 19 in 1949, for the same two-month period.

Aroostook County, which did an outstanding safety job in 1951 with only 13 highway fatalities for the entire year, added three February deaths to January's three and finds itself charged with six of the state's 20 1952 victims.

Two coasting fatalities raised to five the number of youngsters who have been killed sliding this year. Three pedestrians, three passengers, and one driver complete the total of February deaths.

The three pedestrian victims brought to six the number of people who have been killed walking this year, as compared with only 2 during the same period last year.

There has been a tremendous increase in the number of drivers involved in reportable accidents. Last year the figure was 3,294 for January and February, this year it jumped to 5,021 for the same two months—an increase of 52%.

When we realize that a reportable accident is one that involves a fatality, personal injury or property damage in excess of $50, we begin to appreciate the terrible cost of these highway accidents.

Unusually hazardous driving conditions are, of course, responsible for this marked upswing in accidents. However, the careful driver is one who adapts his driving to existing conditions. Low speeds and extreme caution have been, and still are, indicated. Failure to exercise this caution has resulted in a rash of accidents—Lt. John de Winter, Director, Division of Traffic & Safety, Maine State Police.

RESULTS OF HEART FUND DRIVE

With no "pressure" whatsoever being put into the drive the following amount was realized: Primary School, $29.50; all other elementary schools, $50.58; plastic heart coin containers, $25.50; individual contributions, $7.00; total $112.58. This tally by over one hundred dollars of reaching the quota for Bethel and vicinity. We trust that everyone who wished to do so did have the opportunity to make a contribution, and wish to thank all those who contributed.

AUTO TAXES COST MAINE VEHICLE OWNER MORE THAN FEDERAL INCOME TAX

Big as it is, the federal income tax costs the typical Maine motor vehicle owner less money than the taxes on his vehicle and gasoline, Leroy T. Snowdon, Executive Secretary of the Maine Petroleum Industries Committee has revealed.

He cited a Federal Reserve Board study which found that most automobile owning families have incomes below $4,000 a year.

The typical family man in this group is now paying $71.42 a year in federal income tax, he said. By comparison, he continued, annual state and federal automotive and gasoline taxes now average $107 per vehicle in Maine.

Snowdon pointed out that the federal taxes on motor vehicle owners were increased at the same time that the income tax was boosted by Congress last year.

As a result, he explained, Maine motorists are now paying higher federal excise taxes on new motor vehicles, parts and accessories, and a two cents a gallon federal tax on gasoline. This federal tax combined with the state rate makes a total gasoline tax of eight cents a gallon here.

"Even with all other kinds of taxes at a record high, the motorist has not lost his unhappy distinction," Snowdon said. "He is still considered by many to be the most heavily taxed citizen in Maine."

Village Votes Spend $11,000

In a meeting which lasted over an hour and a half Monday evening about 30 citizens of the Bethel Village Corporation held a thorough discussion of village affairs, re-elected all but one of last year's officials and raised money to meet the needs of 1952 business. Elmer Allen was chosen to succeed Frank Nary as park commissioner.

After Chief Robert Blake's statement regarding the condition of the hook and ladder truck, for which tires are not available, it was the wish of several to provide funds for a truck chassis to replace the old machine, a transformed Lincoln passenger car. However this was not possible as the article was worded for fire department maintenance and the amount was held to last year's figure of $1,950.

The Police account was increased $50 to allow assistance in purchasing officer's clothing and Street lights were allowed an additional $50 to pay for extra lights added since last year.

The permanent metal street signs for the rest of the village streets were received last fall and $100 was raised to provide for the purchase of posts, installation and painting.

After the longest discussion of the evening it was voted to accept the provisions of Title II of the Social Security Act, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1951, giving benefits to Corporation employees, and $150 will be taken from the surplus account for this purpose.

Big Spending—So What?

On the front page of my daily newspaper there appears a dispatch headed: "Total Tax Load of Arkansas Citizens is $172,000,000." On Page 5 there is another dispatch, this one from Washington. It is headed: "Auditor Figures $200,000,000 Wanted at State of Arkansas." And elsewhere in the paper there is a small item saying the President will demand Congressional approval of his full departmental budget for the 1952-1953 fiscal year.

More of the same headlines are distributed each week, and each week we read with some surprise that the President is not a spender. We read that he is a saver. We read that he is a frugal spender. We read that he is a frugal spender. We read that he is a frugal spender.

Disgraceful Complacency

The first of these headlines is a dispatch from the Associated Press. It says that the total tax load of Arkansas citizens is $172,000,000. This is a very large sum of money. It is a sum of money that is being spent by the government. It is a sum of money that is being spent by the government.

More of the same headlines are distributed each week, and each week we read with some surprise that the President is not a spender. We read that he is a saver. We read that he is a frugal spender. We read that he is a frugal spender. We read that he is a frugal spender.

Pattern of Corruption

And now we read the headline: "Pattern of Corruption." This is a headline that is very interesting. It is a headline that is very interesting. It is a headline that is very interesting. It is a headline that is very interesting.

Dale Carnegie

Author of "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

Sympathy Is Appreciated

FROM ANTWERP, BELGIUM, comes the story of Frans Van Tongerlo, 23 Kallement, Monmiegem.

He had as a regular customer a man who he says proved the best guinea pig one could imagine for testing human relationship principles. He called on him twice a week and usually received a small order, but always he was greeted with such remarks: "Another salesman, more salesmen than customers. I won't order much today." Some times this customer kept Mr. Tongerlo waiting upwards of two hours before he would give him attention, although he knew full well that there were other customers to be called on. If Mr. Tongerlo even so much as mentioned that he had other visits to make, he became furious and responded with angry remarks. Naturally, Mr. Tongerlo hated to call on the man—and he had learned to dislike him intensely.

Then one day it was all changed. When he paid his usual call he received the usual small order and hurriedly as the man said his wife was in the hospital and he had to go to her.

Well! That put an entirely different complexion on the matter. Instead of resenting the man's attitude, Mr. Tongerlo, felt sympathetic toward him. Perhaps he had had incidents to carry at the other times he called, and about which Mr. Tongerlo knew nothing. The more he thought about it, the more he sympathized. He had the sudden desire to help this man, and all feeling of dislike was dissipated. Finally he went to a florist's and bought some flowers for 25 francs, about half a dollar in American money. These he took himself to the hospital where he was permitted to visit the patient for a few minutes of pleasant conversation.

The result? Two weeks later when he called on the erstwhile disagreeable customer, he was greeted with "At last you're here, my friend. I want to thank you for the happiness you gave my wife." Then he invited Mr. Tongerlo in for a drink and gave him an order twice as large as he had ever given him. Saying he knew Mr. Tongerlo's time was too valuable to waste, he then bade him goodbye in a warm and friendly manner.

It has been like that ever since, and the orders are still being increased.

All because Mr. Tongerlo expressed "sympathy he felt for a man whose wife was ill."

"NO PLACE TO HIDE"

Across the Desk

THE EDITOR of the Page News and Courier, Lynch, Va., recently discussed a problem in his editorial columns that has long worried many a country editor whose greatest interest is his community and its betterment. How many towns readers can apply these words to their own community?

"One of the puzzling traits of our community and we suppose of all small communities is that public meetings for the purpose of discussing important civic problems are poorly attended. Last Thursday evening no more than 150 people were in attendance at the panel discussion at the Lynch high school which went into all phases of the school situation in Page county. Nevertheless when this problem is placed before the public for a decision those who have shown no interest will demand, and probably get, a big audience for their opinions."

Similar Thoughts

Somewhat along the same line the editor of the East Texas Light, Texarkana, Texas, commented on the community's problem of keeping its youth at home.

Everyone, of course, is entitled to their opinion, but first they should have an opinion based on authentic information and sound judgment after study of the facts. Sound judgment must be formed quickly, with realism and a genuine desire to arrive at a logical and practical solution in the light of the facts. We know of no way to accomplish this except to work for it—and this is no easy task.

Well informed people are motivated not only by what they read, but by what they hear, see and talk. Reading is merely a means to an end. It is essential that it be supplemented by a genuine interest in the subject and there is no better way of evaluating that interest than to count the noses at a public meeting like that held last Thursday night."

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Boston, Mass. (Associated Press)—"Washington knew what he was talking about when he wrote in that Farewell Address: 'As a very important source of strength and security, cherish public credit.' One method of preserving it is to use it as sparingly as possible. Wouldn't it be fine if our Administration would adopt that policy, instead of proposing $5 billion dollar budgets and $14,000,000,000 deficits?"

Clark, E. D. Center

"An enlightened people, regardless of where they obtain their information, if that information is true and accurate, are the best governed. It is when people are forced to do the things they know nothing about that revolutions are started. . . . If we were to maintain our freedom of speech and writing, we must take a stand against an absolute control of the information that affects each and every one of us. The news of the day must be given publicly whether we are in accord or not. Only in this manner can we lay claim to absolute freedom."

BRICE YOUNGMAN had a bitter outlook on life. Since boyhood he had known a feeling of injustice. It wasn't fair, he reasoned, for some to have plenty and others (like himself) hardly enough. It wasn't just for some to have to work and scrimp and never know freedom from worry, while others enjoyed life to its utmost without care or fret or labor.

It is said that if a man wishes hard enough for anything it will be his. Brice Youngman gave the adage a sound rating in his mind, when, just before he reached the age of 30, the thing happened. It happened overnight. He was advised that half a million dollars was coming his way, because a certain little piece of pasteboard, for which he had invested $500, had figures written on it that corresponded with those appearing on a similar bit of pasteboard, which had been drawn from a box after a great horse race.

It was hard for Brice and for Beth, his wife, to grasp the significance of this news. He had worked hard all his life and had built up a fairly decent business as a local garage owner. His instinctive business training stood by him, therefore, when the half a million dollars was delivered into his hands. He invested a good share of it in staple stocks and opened up a bank account on the rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Brice Youngman then journeyed to New York where smart shops and up-to-date tailors began to eat up the bank account. In the midst of their orgy of buying, Brice took time out to purchase tickets for a round-the-world cruise.

A week later the joyful Youngmans set sail. They visited every continent on the globe. They met all kinds of people, hobnobbed with the idle rich, spared no expense. In short, did the thing up brown. A year and a half later they set sail for New York. They were eager to get home. Somewhere Brice hadn't found the idle rich as interesting as he thought they might be. They didn't get the kick out of life he thought they should. When he analyzed the situation he decided that these people had never known anything different. Hence couldn't appreciate their good fortune. Folks like himself who had worked hard and knew what it was to scrimp and save, could enjoy life more. A lot more than the idle rich. Or could they? Here was a problem that Brice couldn't settle to his own satisfaction. The fact that his bank roll was gone, that he had had to tend home for more money, that he'd have to return to his old business wasn't as disturbing as it might be. In fact, he was anticipating getting back to the old grind with a good deal of relief.

Was this attitude a matter of course? Now that his money was gone was he sorry or glad? Was he sick of wealth and luxury, or was he just trying to convince himself that he

They reached New York on a blank, windy day in March, and took a train for the small town back in the hills where Brice had once owned a garage. Things looked good, but familiar things always look good when one has not seen them for some time. The garage was still there, doing business at the old stand. The little cottage where Brice had lived most of his life was still there, awaiting their arrival.

They entered and looked around and knew a sense of security and gladness. They wandered from one room to the next, pulling up curtains, opening creaking doors, removing dust-protecting sheets from the furniture. At the rear door was a stack of magazines and hand bills and a letter or two left by the mailman. Brice sat down at the kitchen table and began to go through the pile.

THERE WAS A LETTER from the broker who had invested his money before leaving on the cruise. He read and his heart leaped.

"Beth," he called. "Beth!" And when Beth came running he flourished the sheet.

"Beth, we're rich again! Rich! Do you hear! That money I invested before we went away has doubled, tripled itself!"

Beth sat down wearily.

"We can begin all over again," Brice cried. "Start out on another cruise. Have everything! Go every place! And never have to do a lick of work! Isn't it wonderful?"

"Wonderful!" said Beth, staring at the table. "Marvelous!"

Brice left her there and went out. He wanted to look the town over and talk with old friends.

Beth sat at the table for a long time. Later she got up and began setting the house in order. When Brice came home the rooms had the old familiar, homey look. Both came from the kitchen, saw him standing there in the middle of the floor.

"Brice, I—I've been thinking. Wouldn't it—that is—I'd sort of like to stay here awhile before going away again. It—it seems more natural for us."

"Why, sure, honey, we'll stay here awhile." He took a long breath. "It's kind of hard to do nothing but travel around after you've been working all your life. It doesn't come easy. You have to be born into it."

Beth's eyes were moist. "I'm glad, Brice. I sort of hated to suggest it. I was really a little disappointed when you told me about getting that money. I—I tell you, I'd sort of looked forward to staying here and living like we used to. I know it's asking a lot. I know you hate to be poor and to—"

But Brice suddenly began to laugh.

"Why, you know, honey, I was thinking that very thing about it. I just now did a calculation. I was almost afraid to tell you. The old garage had a gain for a good five years."

CLEVELAND, OHIO — Here are copper, steel and other metal pipes may exist for an indefinite period of time. Architects and home builders are turning to this new system of duct heating for permanent homes, the Sanitary Engineering Committee reports. Vitrified clay pipe, which is a non-corrosive material, is used as the duct to distribute warm air with minimum heat loss even without insulation. This heating method economically combines the favorable factors of radiant heat with forced warm air perimeter heating. Vitrified clay pipe is recognized as the ever-lasting duct material. It permits a 50% saving in installation costs of material and labor. Clay pipe is chemically inert, cannot rust, corrode, erode or disintegrate. And, clay pipe for warm air heating ducts will not deplete the nation's stock of vital materials—it replaces and therefore saves critical metals.

THE TANKER

There are GI's by the millions and men in navy blues. But there is still another fighter I will introduce to you.

They call him just a tanker and his uniform is brown. He is a rugged individual and he really gets around.

Training him at old Ft. Knox the place that God forgot. Where mud is always ankle deep and the rain it ceases not.

He has peeled a million carrots and twice as many spuds. He spent his leisure time cleaning up his duds.

He has set up many tables and countless dishes dried. He learned to make his bunk and the broom to guide.

Now listen girls and take this tip. Just get yourself a tanker. There is nothing he can't do.

When looking for a partner as a mate to go through life. Don't forget the tanker who's looking for a wife.

Some day he will get to heaven and to St. Peter he will tell. Another tanker reporting, Sir, I've spent my time in hell.

—Boys, Co. B, 628 Medium Tank Bn.

PIFK STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

A DEAL IS COOKING between screen star Lee Bowman and ABC for a radio series in which he would interview celebrities arriving and departing at various airports.

The Associated Press is reportedly getting ready for a plunge into the TV newsreel field.

The other wire services are already in the swim. . . . Sam Crawford is considering a taped air series for NBC.

Phil Harris is talking TV these days, too. . . . He wants to get in cautiously, though, by guesting on various shows for the first year "to get the feel."

Scores of Hollywood movie, radio and TV stars are throwing their weight and money into the campaign to nominate Eisenhower.

PLATTER CHATTER

CAPITOL—Dean Martin comes up with a sentimental waxing of that old favorite, "When You're Smiling." . . . Back has "All I Have to Give You." . . . Helen O'Connell follows her click in "Slow Poke" with "There's Been a Change in Me" backed by "Slingsy."

About 10 years ago a beautiful hillbilly ballad called "When My Blue Moon Turns to Gold Again" came out. . . . Recently Tex Ritter revived it in company with Les Baxter.

The disc should splash again. . . . As Long as the River Flows On" is on the flip. . . . Ray Anthony's latest is "For Dancers Only" and "I Hear a Rhapsody," another oldie with schmalz.

In kiddie records, Capitol has some fine ones in a Hopalong Cassidy series, starring—natch—William Boyd. . . . There are "The Story of Tepper," "Happy Birthday," which he does with "California" and "Lucky" . . . and many other selections. . . . Then Baby Snooks carries on her good work in teaching the small fry manners the easy way, with a little comedy, a little song and a few serious moments. . . . Best are "Table Manners," "Crossing Streets" with "Kindness to Animals" on the reverse, and "Cleanliness" backed by "Good and Bad."

COLUMBIA—Sammy Kaye's latest is a lovely new ballad, "My Love-Yana" backed by "You Know You Belong to Somebody Else."

THE BETHEL BOWLING TEAM will compete with the Berlin team at the Berlin Bowldrome this Thursday evening. The Bethel team includes Stanley Gallant, J. B. Chapman, Edward Wheeler, William Robertson and Linwood Wheeler.

The Ladies Club will meet March 20 at 2:30 p. m. in Garland Chapel with Mrs. Gayle Foster, Mrs. Charles Merrill and Mrs. Robert Nichols as hostesses. The Guild will be guests and Mrs. Kingsbury, Rural Field Director of the Maine Council of Churches, will be the speaker.

Mrs. Henry Boyer, Mrs. C. M. Bennett, Mrs. Tom Brown and Mrs. Russell Graham have been appointed to the committee representing the Ladies Club for the Rummage Sale to be held the latter part of April by the Church Council.
